

Gen Z: We Are The Future

Unite. Inspire. Educate. We are the future and it starts with YOU!

To whomsoever it may concern:

I am pleased to recommend Ratan Ravichadran for a place in your educational institution. As his supervisor in a United Nations-affiliated justice and advocacy organization, I can confidently state that Ratan is an exemplary candidate due to his compassion towards the world around him, dedication to his work, and commitment to serving his community, among other traits.

Ratan is conscientious and committed. Throughout his time in Gen Z: We Are The Future, Ratan has gone above and beyond in his contributions to the organization. He has been an active participant in each and every meeting, and his insightful comments further the development of our projects and assignments. In addition to completing his own tasks in a timely manner, he has consistently taken on additional work. He supports his teammates and works well in a group setting; he is a role model to everyone he works with.

Ratan's work both within and outside of the organization are evidence of his desire to better the world around him. He has an acute sense of the responsibilities we have as human beings; themes of social justice permeate his articles and published works, and he uses his platform to educate his community on the issues facing society. Ratan is a lifelong learner, and he challenges himself to think outside of the box. In addition, he demonstrates adaptability and resilience as he generates solutions to the everyday problems he faces.

I am confident that Ratan will continue to reach new heights. He is a compassionate and creative individual, and he nurtures his talents with every opportunity he receives. His dedication, curiosity, and intuition will take him far. I recommend Ratan without any reservations.

Sincerely,
