Hello there, I wanted to ask you about the economics honours course. See I like economics right now in 12th and I'm scoring decently however I don't like maths. So should I be opting for eco honours in future or should I go for BBA. It's not like I can't handle maths but I'm not good at it and can't handle it. Please guide. Thank you

I don't like calculus so maybe I should opt for BBA right?

Response From Muskaan Tandon (2016 Batch) on 3rd Jan, 2018

Hi. Economics does require a good amount of math and statistics. I do not have any idea about BBA (I was a science student in 12th). If you can handle calculus go ahead with eco but if you feel calculus is not your thing, then go for BBA. I am doing my degree from ISBF which is affiliated to LSE and they have Bsc courses in economics and management and also one in business and management. Do check those out if that interests you. If you need any more help, do ask.

Think about it. If you enjoy economics than do eco, it is not very tough. However, if you feel that BBA interests you then do it

Which college to aim for computer science

Response From Dhananjay Khanna (2014 Batch) on 23rd Jan, 2018

Hi Hritik. Apart from the first few IITs, NSIT (Dwarka) and DTU (Rohini) are pretty good for Computer Science. IIIT is also great if you're really aiming for the knowledge part. Apart from these, Manipal, VIT, SRM are good enough options.
