Dear ma'am,

It was pleasant to hear you out in today's session. I have a question regarding "Choosing a career option"

I often wonder how a six year old says i want to become a doctor or an engineer or any other profession.

Its really difficult for a person like me to choose a particular career without actually having any practical experience about it. I mean to say how can I devote my entire life, my future to a particular job without actually having a trail of it and to decide whether its suiting me or not at this early stage. One example can be how can i say that i want to become a chef without being cooking even for once.

Being a career counselor, hope you throw some light upon it. Apart from it, it will be greatful if you can suggest some different career options that one can choose apart from the generalized one.

Hope to hear from you soon.
