Umail Queries

December 02, 2019

I am confused between considering a career as clinical psychologist or an emotional counsellor or a physician/neurosurgeon.

I am basically inclined towards anything related to cognitive behaviour, human behaviour and the brain, why we behave the way we behave. But I also want to help people with whatever knowledge I would've attained. My next concern is for whichever career I choose amongst these, is India a good place to study them? Along with having a career in one of these fields I want to be able to have a sense of freedom and be with my family.

Having laid down all my concerns, I would request you to please help me through.

Regards,
Huriyyah Pattawala
