Your Personality Profile

Confident and assertive, you speak your mind and always seem to be sure of yourself. While honest and fair, you are also quite outspoken. You have strong opinions and are usually able to convince others that your position is right.

Friendly and comfortable being the center of attention, you probably have a large group of friends. People admire your determination and willingness to push yourself to achieve your very high standards.

A creative person who asks thought-provoking questions, you love to learn but are bored by repetition. You need constant new challenges to remain interested. You are imaginative and like to look beyond everyday routine to really understand why the world operates as it does.

Decisive and organized, you like to be prepared at all times and may find it difficult or embarrassing to try improvising. You like to be in charge, but sometimes take over projects that aren't really yours. You are frustrated by inefficiency and find illogical rules infuriating.

You want to be good at everything you try. You especially like to demonstrate your competence to others. People look to you as a natural leader and are often impressed with your knowledge. Others respect you and feel comfortable giving you a lot of responsibility.

Recommendations

The following recommendations are based on your results. Consider each and select the ones you think would work best for you.

For Sending and Receiving Communication

Outgoing, well-spoken and self-assured, you are good at expressing information clearly and convincingly. You may ${\it also use gestures-body language-very effectively to make your point. Use your strengths to demonstrate your}\$ competence and knowledge. With your people skills, passion for ideas and eloquence, you excel at winning people over to your way of thinking.

You probably enjoy debate and are very good at it. Be aware that your strong personality and habit of challenging others can be overwhelming for some people. They may feel intimidated, embarrassed or defensive when they're on the receiving end of a barrage of difficult questions or arguments. If you sense that someone has been offended, try using a more diplomatic approach.

Understand that some people may have a different communication style from yours. For example, some may need time to reflect before responding. Others may be more emotional types who address things in terms of their feelings. This doesn't make their ideas any less valid or important. Be patient and give people a chance to express their thoughts in the way that's most natural for them.

As an energetic and powerful speaker, you may be so intent on making your point that you neglect to listen properly. Practice using active listening skills. Focus on what the other person is saying, make eye contact, nod or gesture, and watch their body language for non-verbal cues. Don't interrupt. When they've finished speaking, ask questions and rephrase what they've said to check that your understanding is accurate.

Be receptive to opportunities for non-work related, casual conversation. You tend to be focused on getting down to work and uninterested in small talk. But for some people, a friendly rapport is essential to working together more effectively. Be prepared to share a little about your life and thoughts and to listen while the other person relates their experiences. This can lead to greater mutual understanding and a more productive working relationship.

Working with Others
