Your Personality Profile

Confident and assertive, you speak your mind and always seem to be sure of yourself. While honest and fair, you are also quite outspoken. You have strong opinions and are usually able to convince others that your position is right.

Friendly and comfortable being the center of attention, you probably have a large group of friends. People admire your determination and willingness to push yourself to achieve your very high standards.

A creative person who asks thought-provoking questions, you love to learn but are bored by repetition. You need constant new challenges to remain interested. You are imaginative and like to look beyond everyday routine to really understand why the world operates as it does.

Decisive and organized, you like to be prepared at all times and may find it difficult or embarrassing to try improvising. You like to be in charge, but sometimes take over projects that aren't really yours. You are frustrated by inefficiency and find illogical rules infuriating.

You want to be good at everything you try. You especially like to demonstrate your competence to others. People look to you as a natural leader and are often impressed with your knowledge. Others respect you and feel comfortable giving you a lot of responsibility.

FC	or Learning Environments
V	Seek out a well-respected, academically challenging program with high standards, a good student-to-faculty ratio and top-rated teaching staff. Look for knowledgeable instructors who will encourage you to probe, test and ask difficult questions as part of your learning.
V	Your ideal learning environment is an engaging setting that encourages innovation, achievement and original thinking. You like to be surrounded by high achievers like yourself with similar goals and standards. Look for opportunities to develop your leadership ability, distinguish yourself and stand out from your peers.
	Take advantage of internships, research initiatives and work-study programs where you can test your ideas and practice your leadership skills.
	While you may not think you have time for extracurricular activities, taking a break from your studies can provide stress relief and add balance to your life. You may enjoy attending athletics competitions or campus cultural activities. You can also get involved in clubs and organizations that provide opportunities to practice your debate and leadership skills. If you can't find a club that interests you, start one of your own.

V٥	ur Preferred Environment
	Encourages vision, ambition and determination. Innovative, goal-oriented and driven to achieve results, you pursue your objectives with great enthusiasm. Your insight helps you to make connections and see realistic solutions to difficult problems that others might have missed. You thrive in situations where you can be creative, take action and initiate change and improvement.
	Takes place in a stimulating environment where you're surrounded by other competent people with whom you can discuss and debate new ideas and complex problems. You dislike routine and need lots of opportunities for intellectual and professional challenge.
	Is orderly and well-organized, with clear plans, directions and schedules — or assigns you the responsibility of developing these for your workplace.
V	Gives you the chance to be in control, to supervise or to lead. A good strategic planner, you can easily see what need to be done and have the skills to move your project, team or organization in the right direction. Fo	For Growth and Development
	Practice patience. You are so determined to get things done that you may be tempted to make a snap decision or urge others to settle things. For important decisions, ensure that all the necessary information has been evaluated. Remember to consult others and to consider the impact your decision will have on people. If a decision is someone else's responsibility, don't push or try to interfere.
V	Be willing to modify your plans. Once decided, you like to stick to the arrangement and move on. But sometimes mistakes are made or important details have been missed. If you're presented with a good reason to change a plan, be open to it.
	While you like to make improvements and try new things, be sure you can justify any changes you make. If an established procedure is efficient and practical, there may be no reason to alter it.
	Where possible, hand off detail-oriented tasks to colleagues who excel at working with facts or figures. You are more productive when left to focus on the broader perspective.
V	Pay attention to your work-life balance. You can become so focused on your work that you may neglect other aspects of your life and end up stressed out or exhausted.

Communication

Strengths Objective and logical	Challenges ☐ Intense
 Confident, articulate speaker Enjoy discussion and debate Direct, straight talker Outspoken Not easily offended ✓ Think and react quickly 	 Can be blunt May appear aggressive ✓ May not listen ✓ Tend to interrupt Not very tactful Dislike small talk
Recommendations The following recommendations are based on your results. Consider each and select the ones you think would work best for you.
For Sending and Receiving Communication Outgoing, well-spoken and self-assured, you are good at expressing information clearly and convincingly. You may also use gestures — body language — very effectively to make your point. Use your strengths to demonstrate your competence and knowledge. With your people skills, passion for ideas and eloquence, you excel at winning people over to your way of thinking.
You probably enjoy debate and are very good at it. Be aware that your strong personality and habit of challenging others can be overwhelming for some people. They may feel intimidated, embarrassed or defensive when they're on the receiving end of a barrage of difficult questions or arguments. If you sense that someone has been offended, try using a more diplomatic approach.
Understand that some people may have a different communication style from yours. For example, some may need time to reflect before responding. Others may be more emotional types who address things in terms of their feelings. This doesn't make their ideas any less valid or important. Be patient and give people a chance to express their thoughts in the way that's most natural for them.
Practice using active listening skills. Focus on what the	tent on making your point that you neglect to listen properly. other person is saying, make eye contact, nod or gesture, and terrupt. When they've finished speaking, ask questions and nding is accurate.
Be receptive to opportunities for non-work related, casu	al conversation. You tend to be focused on getting down to work and uninterested in small talk. But for some people, a friendly rapport is essential to working together more effectively. Be prepared to share a little about your life and thoughts and to listen while the other person relates their experiences. This can lead to greater mutual understanding and a more productive working relationship.
